

(BON VIVANT)

YOUR PARTY HAS ARRIVED

The cult of Louis Vuitton turned out in full force — and dressed with equal strength, it must be said — for the company's much-anticipated unveiling of its newly revamped retail store. The corridors of Copley Place Mall spilled over with partygoers there to see the shop's new ready-to-wear collections and ultrasleek finishings. On its heels came a postbash dinner fete served to VIPs in a raw space at the not-yet-opened Mandarin Oriental Hotel, which was transformed by Rafanelli Events into a glittering display of pure industrial chic. Magicians flown in from Paris worked the room, making goldfish appear in guests' water glasses, underneath chain-link chandeliers (a stroke of genius courtesy of Rafanelli's Bill Evers) strewn with LV logo bags — a reminder to guests all night that the brand's goods are every bit as lavish as its parties.

Louis Vuitton event: FB editor Alexandra Hall, Erica Corsano, and Daniel LaLonde

Daniela Corte

Lisa Pierpont

Erico Lopez, Ricardo Rodriguez, Celine Oranger, Frances Rivera, Michael Kelley, and Stuart Fraass

Kristen and Ben Watson with Phillip Strauss

Kellee Greene and Herbie Wilkey

Corinne Grousbeck, Nina Fialkow, and Paulina Neely

PHOTOS BY DOM MUGUL

Evelyn and Sundar Subramaniam

Kahila Hogarth and Atsu Gunther

Christopher Bennett and Jason Macklin